Flensburg Old City Tour

1 Nordertor

Flensburg's landmark. The historic gate was built around the year 1595. It served as the city's northern entrance and boundary until 1795. On the arch's north side, the royal coat of arms of the Danish King Christian IV, and the city's coat of arms are displayed.

2 Volksbad

The former public bath house is now a culture and communication centre.

3 Phänomenta

The science centre is situated in a former merchant's yard. Visitors are invited to dive into the world of science. A playful and enjoyable place for all ages.

4 Norderstraße

The street is situated in a part of the old city, that has developed into a multicultural and trendy district. It comprises the Nordertor, the Danish Central Library, several hyggelig cafés, and the popular shoefti, dangling from above.

5 Merchant's Yard Norderstraße 86

A former typical „Handelshof“ from the 18th century, with a transverse storage (Querspeicher), the courtyard was fitted with production units, servants' accommodation, cattle sheds, fountain water supply system, and was home to the famous Bommerlunder schnaps.

6 Museumshafen & -werft

Museum, harbour, and shipyard for heritage and traditional sailing ships. The wooden crane at quayside is the museum's landmark. Old wooden ships are being rebuilt and even newly manufactured at this unique venue. Spectators are welcome!

7 Flensborghus

Formerly an orphanage, erected between 1723–1725, using stones from the old Duburg Fortress (built around 1400). Old Danish inscription on the wooden beams, Danish King Frederik IV's mirror monogram on the building's front. The building contains the headquarters of the Danish Minority and major Danish institutions for Flensburg and Southern Schleswig.

8 Schifffahrtsmuseum & Rum-Museum

The adventure museum is all about Flensburg's shipping history, with a model of the city from around 1600. There is a lot to learn about the harbour and yards, sailors and steamers, ropes and rigging, shipbuilding and fjord shipping, as well as sugar, rum and slavery. In the historic cellar of the former customs packing house, a multimedia installation reflects the history of trade and rum in the city. The Captain's Trail and the Rum & Sugar Mile start at the Maritime Museum.

9 Vantage point Duburg

You can reach the top of the old wall, encircling the former fortress in front of the Danish Gymnasium, via the Rummelgang or the Marientrepp. Enjoy a wonderful view of Flensburg and its fjord all the way to Denmark.

10 Hotel Hafen Flensburg

The ensemble consists of five buildings from the 18th and 19th century, plus new additions. Following WW2, this place was part of the red light district. The reconstruction for today's 4-star hotel commenced in 2014.

11 Oluf-Samson-Gang

Around 1600, this area belonged to the ship owner and merchant Oluf Samson. In the 18th century, it was the living quarters of sailors and craftsmen, subsequently it played a central part in the city's entertainment quarters as „Liebesgasse“.

12 Lagerhaushof & Künstlerhof

Located in the Norderstraße, and connecting to the Segelmacherstraße, the storage and artists' courtyard displays impressive examples of urban renewal from around 40 years ago. This is Flensburg's oldest half-timbered building.

13 Eckener Haus

Town house, dating back to the 16th century. The birth place and living quarters of Hugo Eckener, a famous aviation pioneer (first crossing of the Atlantic in a Zeppelin 1924), and Alexander Eckener, painter and graphic designer.

14 Kompagnietor

Built in 1602, this was the official city scale and meeting house of the „Flensburger Schiffergelag 1580“, the company of Flensburg's boatmen. The pediment displays the city's coat of arms 1603, and the coat of arms of the Danish King Christian IV, and Queen Anna Catharina. The highwater marks on the building are witnesses of past flood disasters.

15 Salondampfer Alexandra

Germany's last remaining coal burning and steam driven passenger ship is a registered national monument. The „Alex“ was built in the year 1908.

16 Rumhaus Johannsen

Old merchant's yard („Marienburg“) with an impressive tower. Company seat of the oldest remaining active rum manufacturer in Flensburg. The tiny shop, „Johannsens Hökerei“ offers tastings and sales in a cosy atmosphere. Convivial guided tours.

17 St. Marien-Kirche

St. Mary's church is a three-nave stone building from 1284, with late medieval ceiling murals. The bronze baptismal font was crafted by Michael Dible (1591), the altar by sculptor Hinrich Ringerk and the Dutch painter Jan van Enum. The epitaphs (commemorative plaques) are significant, in particular the Beyer family's (1591) with a town view of the period. Impressive stain glass windows by the Flensburg artist Käte Lassen (1880–1956).

18 Nordermarkt

Heritage market square, dating back to the city's origin (1284). For many years, Flensburg's cattle market. The well preserved „Schrangen“ is the stone-covered arcade, where bakers and butchers had their (weather-) protected stands. On the edge of the arcade, facing the square, the remains of pillory-brackets are still visible.

19 Neptunbrunnen

The fountain was built 1758 in Rococo style. It displays the city's and the royal coat of arms, and the mirror monogram of Danish King Frederik V.

20 Brasseriehof

Situated at Große Straße 42–44, this historic building is part of the setting of the famous German writer Theodor Storm's short story „Im Nachbarhaus links“.

21 Heiliggeistkirche

The Church of the Holy Spirit was built in 1386. Since 1588, it is the main church for the city's Danish congregation. It holds late medieval frescoes, a baroque altar, and votive ships.

22 Westindienspeicher

The warehouse situated between Große Straße 24 and Speicherlinie was built in 1789 as a storage facility for rum and cane sugar. With its characteristic floor hatches and gable crane, it is a historic witness from the time of flourishing trades with the isles in the Danish West Indies.

23 Norderhofenden 1

The residence of Flensburg's Police Directorate, where the last members of the Nazi regimen („Flensburger Regierung“) of admiral Karl Dönitz were displayed to the international press, following their arrest, on 23 May 1945 – more than two weeks after the Surrender.

24 Große Straße & Holm

The pedestrian zone and shopping mile offers leisurely strolling with a view: Enjoy the sight of architectural heritage and glamour, e.g., Holm no. 10, a restored town mansion with a beautiful facade, dating back to 1853; Holm no. 17, an estate, dating back to the mercantile trading with Norway in the 18th century, and Holm no. 19/21, one of the oldest preserved merchant's courtyards from Flensburg's heydays before the Thirty Years' War.

25 Museumsberg

The public museum contains two buildings, the Hans-Christiansen and Heinrich-Sauermann Haus, exhibiting lavish collections of historic art and culture from South Schleswig. Peculiar and interesting are the region's „Pesel“ collections, containing farmhouse parlours, heritage-furniture from Schleswig-Holstein, medieval religious art, and an important collection of Nolde pictures. Alternating exhibitions. Annexed natural science museum.

26 Alter Friedhof/Idstedt-Löwe

Idyllic cemetery and beautiful park, created in 1813, containing impressive grave stones and monuments, as well as family tombs and soldiers' grave sites. The classicist chapel was built 1810–1813 by Axel Bundsen. The impressive lion stands tall in memory of the Danish victory in the battle of Idstedt in 1850. It was brought back here from Copenhagen in 2011, where the big statue had spent many years in diaspora. Today it is a symbol of the German-Danish friendship.

27 Borgerforeningen

Holm no. 17 is a restaurant and traditional meeting place for the Danish minority in Flensburg. The building's Royal Hall was a venue for many of King Frederik VIth luscious parties in the 19th century.

28 St. Nikolai-Kirche

St. Nicholas Church is a magnificent example of North German Red Brick Gothic (around 1390), and it is Flensburg's biggest church building. It was named after the sailors' patron. The bronze baptismal font originates from the 15th century, the pulpit dates from the 16th. The famous Orgelprospekt (organ front case) was designed by Hinrich Ringerk (1609); it is the most elaborate Renaissance organ case in the whole of North Germany. Because of its uncommon construction – it consists of two organs from different eras – it is as such a world-wide unique instrument.

29 Südermarkt

Being an important crossing of the biggest early trade roads between Friesland, Angel and Viborg (Denmark) to Wedel, the Southern Marketplace has played an important role in shaping the city since 1100. This is the oldest weekly farmers' market in Schleswig-Holstein, and a meeting place for the city's inhabitants on Wednesday and Saturday mornings. At the edge of Rote Straße, you will find Flensburg's oldest town house (built a. 1490), at present occupied by the Nikolai-Apotheke.

30 Rote Straße

Ancient town alley, containing five picturesque craftsmen's and lodging yards, handicrafts, galleries, fashion and design boutiques, restaurants, cafés and lush vine serving facilities.

31 Wein & Rumhaus Braasch/ Braasch Rum Manufaktur Museum

Two ancient timber framed merchant's buildings with outgoing hosts invite you to linger, and even sample a sip of rum, if you are inclined. At shop hours, the Manufacture private exhibition of distiller Walter Braasch is open – free of charge.

32 Kloster zum Heiligen Geist

The former Franciscan monastery, dating back to the 13th century, at the southern end of the street, was converted into a charitable foundation for the poor and old, following the Reformation. Today, this is an old peoples' and nursing home.

33 Deutsches Haus

The German House was inaugurated 1930, and built with substantial funds from the Weimar Government, as a „gratitude to the German people's loyalty“ during the German-Danish Plebiscite of 1920. It is the venue of significant concerts with the Flensburger Bach-Choir, Schleswig-Holsteinisches Sinfonieorchester, Sønderjyllands Symfoniorkester and other performers.

34 Robbe & Berking Yachting Heritage Centre

The museum holds the world's greatest yacht sport-library, two galleries, and an exhibition. It was launched in 2016 by the Robbe & Berking family, a known silver manufacturer. The museum's focus points are the history of yacht sport and classic yachts, and traditional classic yachting.

35 Ostufer/East Side

The street Angelburger Straße is one of the oldest connecting trails between Friesland and Angel. Its starting point is near to the St. Johannis-Kirche, Flensburg's oldest church, built out of field stones in the 12th century. From here, take the Johannisstraße to Sankt-Jürgen-Straße, and venture through the lanes and alleyways with their beautiful and often small houses – the former Captains' Quarter, heritage of Flensburg's maritime history.
